LINCOLN'S HONESTY

Many Volume in Government Archives Recalls Tradition of the Service

(By the Associated Press)

Washington, Feb. 12. — A musty volume in the archives of the Post-office department, in which is recorded the appointment of Abraham Lincoln as postmaster of New Salem, Saratoga County, Ill., on May 7, 1833, recalls an interesting story of his postmastership which is said to be a tradition to the service.

As related in a memorandum made public by the department, it was several years after the postoffice at New Salem had been closed, in 1839, that one of the few special agents then assigned to that duty called on Lincoln, then a struggling young lawyer of 27, to close up finally the accounts of the office. The former postmaster, in accordance with the department routine, had waited for the agent's visit. The latter, according to the story, presented Lincoln a statement showing balance due the government from the postoffice amounting to $17.

Lincoln, as the memorandum relates the story, responded by rising from his chair, crossing his office to a small table and producing a cotton bag tied with a string. Throwing it, he produced the exact amount of money demanded by the agent, indicating that he had held the sum intact and untouched ever since his retirement as postmaster.

"I never use any man's money but my own," he exclaimed calmly.

DAIRYMEN'S LEAGUE MOVIE

Important Feature Show Present An Ideal of Co-operation Organized—Weeks of Hard Work, Planning, System and Patience On the Screen.

Farmers from all sections of Ontario county, business men of Oneonta and other interested citizens, comprising an audience that well filled the Massey theatre, watched with great interest the showing of the Dairymen's League movie yesterday afternoon and later listened with attention to an illuminating address on league problems by Ruth Lewis, the "Billy Sunday" of the Dairymen's League.

The movie, which is being shown to audiences of interested persons in communities throughout the state, showed clearly and comprehensively the extent of the league's activities. The spectators were first taken on a trip through the league headquarters in Utica, where they saw the activities of the large clerical force employed there and were introduced to the officers and directors of the league. Views were then shown of league plants in various sections in New York state and Pennsylvania, including the large receiving plant at Cooperstown. The interiors of the plants were pictured and the processes shown.

Particular attention was paid to the large condenser where part of the surplus milk that is not sent into the milk market is condensed and prepared for shipment to all parts of the world. The process of making Dairymen's League ice cream was also depicted. Particular attention was paid to the model plant at Auburn. A trip was also made to the fine plant in New York city, N. E. Vredenburg, the local representative of the league, explained the pictures. Organ music supplemented the entertainment.

Following the showing of the picture Mr. Lewis was introduced by D. J. Beardslee of New Berlin, director of the league for Ontario county. Mr. Lewis, whose fame as an exponent of league policies is wide-spread, explained the purpose of the pooling practice and discussed the economic reasons back of the farmer's failure to get a fair price for his product in the past.

Mr. Lewis stated that the well known economic law of supply and demand was responsible for the dairymen's difficulties. Before the league took a hand milk was produced in a quantity far in excess of the fluid milk demand. Consequently part of the milk had to be made into cheese and butter and the dairymen received for that milk just what the creamery operators could afford to pay for it, an amount much lower than the milk would bring if destined for the fluid market. The pooling plan obviates this condition and assures the dairymen the same price for his product no matter to what use it is to be put.

The speaker stated that the league was trying to regulate the market so that it would not be glutted with milk at any time. An intensive educational campaign is being conducted leading to increased use of milk for beverage purposes. Condensaries and ice cream plants are being conducted to take care of part of the surplus.

Mr. Lewis stated that the time was soon at hand when the league members would be given an opportunity to cancel their pooling contracts if they so desired. He stated that it was impossible to him that any member would start out on a side track when success lay straight ahead. He said that the present difficulties are but temporary and expressed the conviction that the league would accomplish its purpose in spite of the opposition of those willing to share in the benefits but unwilling to lend a hand.

LIST OF VANISHED AVIATORS GROWS

Disappearance of Two Officers Recalls Other Mysteries.

WASTE PLACES ARE TRAPS

Flights Over Deserts, Wildernesses and Great Swamps Full of Perils—Five Men Who Set Out on Training Flight in Free Balloon in 1921 Never Heard From—Student Pilot Spends Week of Harrowing Expedition in the Everglades.

The disappearance of Col. F. C. Marshall and Lieut. C. L. Weber, army aviators, after they started December 7 on a flight from San Diego to Tucson, Ariz., recalls similar disappearances of army and navy fliers and the searches made for them.

While army officials have long given up hope that Colonel Marshall and Lieutenant Weber would be found alive, the belief is still firmly adhered to that their bodies and the wreck of their plane may be eventually recovered.

Either of the two regions in which they may have been forced to land is a desert waste. The section east of Tucson, where a plane believed to have been there was last seen, is extremely rocky and mountainous. Researchers might look for months without coming upon the ravine in which the wreckage may lie hidden. The sands of the desert to the west and south of the city are so fine that a light breeze would be sufficient to cover the wreckage under a dune in a short time.

Big Air Fleet in Search.

For many days a fleet of planes scoured the region, flying as low and as far as was compatible with safety. The rumor that the charred bodies were seen lying in a gorge near the Papago Indian reservation, near the border line, was found incorrect by troops of cavalry that aided in the search.

In March, 1921, five men from the Pensacola naval air station set out in a training flight in a free balloon. Quartermaster G. K. Wilkinson was pilot, and had with him four enlisted flying students. Neither the balloon nor its passengers were ever seen again. A squadron of seaplanes and several dirigibles, aided by a fleet of ships, scoured the waters out to sea for miles.

Then trappers in the Everglades reported hearing voices in the swamps at night and the searching airplanes made flights for weeks over the great wilderness. Months afterward, what was believed to be the remains of a white balloon basket were sighted far at sea, and it was finally believed the fliers were lost in the Atlantic.

Raymond White, as a student flier, spent almost a week of peril and hunger in the Everglades. He was forced down when the gasoline gave out and crashed into the almost impenetrable cypress swamps. That was only the start of his experience. Mosquitoes were so thick and voracious he had to cover face and arms with grease from his ship; he had no matches to build a signal fire, and was forced to take to trees at night to avoid animals he heard prowling about. He finally made his way, subsisting on herbs and grasshoppers, to a Seminole Indian camp, and was sent by them to a distant farmhouse, where, after a week, his comrades found him.

Capt. C. W. Danneman and Lieut. E. J. Verheyden were two other fliers who lost their lives in a free balloon. They started in the national balloon race from St. Louis in 1919 and were never heard from until their bodies were washed up by the waters of Lake Huron.

Most Losses on Border.

While many other fliers have been lost in various sections of the country for two or three day stretches, all were found, and aviators declare the number of men actually lost is very small in view of the increase in flying. Most of the army's losses of that sort have occurred in the desert sections of the Southwest, where fliers are employed in the border patrol.

The most tragic of these occurrences in army records was the loss of Lieuts. F. B. Waterhouse and C. H. Connelly, who lost their way in a storm while on patrol and were forced to land far south in southern California, on the shores of the Gulf. For 10 days they were without food and constantly growing weaker, then, when finally aided by two Mexican fishermen, they were taken almost within sight of food and friends and brutally murdered and robbed.

Lieutenants Davis and Peterson were lost in the desert along the Rio Grande, and although they declared they had not been in Mexican territory, they were captured by Mexican bandits almost in sight of aid and held for ransom for some days. They were forced to undergo many privations and were about to be killed when the ransom was paid.

Lieut. Alexander Pearson was forced down in Mexican territory. The fleet of searchers had given him up for lost. He found a dispirited raft on the river, however, and drifted his way home. Four months later his plane was found in the ravine where it had fallen, a new engine was installed and the plane flown back.

In a Middle West town a lot of people were poisoned by pneumonia at a Jackson day banquet. In Old Hickory's day we had foreign invasion to fear, but no internal disturbances.—(Brooklyn Eagle.)

THE THRIFTY GERMAN.

One of the latest and most audacious of financial transactions on the part of a big German organization is the one put over within the past few weeks, or at least threatened to be put over. The companies at interest are the Hamburg American and the Norddeutscher Lloyd steamship companies, which own vast sums borrowed between the years 1901 and 1908, when the mark had a gold value open to its face, figured in accordance with the purchasing price at that time the debt is $12,000,000. The statement of the companies is that they propose to call all their outstanding indebtedness, paying them in marks at their face value. If this were done, and the marks purchased by the company at the going price for gold, the total amount of real money required to make the purchase and of course to pay the debt, would be less than $2,500.

There has been much said about the sale in America of the German mark. Purchasers of these paper certificates of value deserve no particular consideration, since the buying was purely speculative, made with a view to selling for an advance and taking a profit. The flood of paper, which still continues, made profit taking impossible; but there is no sympathy expressed for the buyers as a whole, since they bought on speculation, and are reaping a loss instead of a profit.

So far as the steamship debentures are concerned, however, it is a different matter. They were issued from six to twelve years before the war began, and as long before the great contest was openly considered, however, it might have been in the councils of the mighty. Whoever bought, therefore, of these securities, paid gold for them and had a right to expect gold and not a worthless paper currency in return.

It is a scandalous proceeding, whereby the German owners of the steamship lines propose to wipe out the entire debt which they owe, and apparently in making the proposed settlement they do not consider the fact that the principal owners and lessees are themselves German. Moreover, it is in line with that large proceeding whereby they plan to escape any further installment of the indemnity which at Versailles they solemnly vowed to pay.

THE AMERICAN SWEET TOOTH.
Statistics recently compiled show that the American sweet tooth is growing sweeter every year, and also more exacting. Formerly the principal use of sugar was for the manufacture of cakes and pies, preserves and other products of the household. Now, while the demand for those purposes has increased, the increase has not been in any such proportion as that for candies, ice cream and other confections very largely confined to the trade of the sweetmeat store.

Americans this year, it is stated, will eat a billion dollars' worth of candies and chocolates, and this will mean an average of about eighteen pounds to every inhabitant of the country, young and old, fat and thin, and toothless and tottering age being alike included. There are 3,000 wholesale confectioners in the country, and there are 50,000 retail candy dealers, employing nearly double that number of persons.

All these figures to those of household use, and it is evident that there is not much reason to anticipate any considerable immediate reduction in the price of sugar.

ABOUT GERMAN ADMIRATION.
Crack French Soldiers Revive German Love For Military Parades.
Esson, Ruhr, Feb. 12.—The Germans, despite five hard years of war and the passing of their once great army—no perhaps because of it—have retained their love for military parades and reviews.

The French troops had reached the outskirts of Essen on the morning of January 11. The halted while the correspondents pushed on to the center of the city to telegraph their news. The correspondents found the post office square filled with the populace in an ugly mood. Jeering, threatening, shouting insults at the French, it looked for a while as if there might be trouble. Every look leveled at the strangers was filled with hatred.

Just then the word was passed that the French cavalry was entering the city, and soon the heads of the horses were heard clattering down the street. General Rampon, riding a magnificent charger, swung into the square leading two of the best squadrons of cavalry in the French army.

Immediately all the sentiments which had been moving the mob, hatred, bitterness, revenge, gave way to one dominating emotion: admiration. A group of a group, evidently composed of former soldiers, which had been particularly conspicuous, was heard to exclaim:

"The general is a splendid horseman; there are very good looking troops."

TIME LACK TOO EFFECTIVE.
Conceded N. H., Feb. 12.—The time lack on the safe which holds and guards the funds of the state of New Hampshire apparently has lost all sense of reverence, if feeling of sanctity. The safe is locked and the state treasury is in danger.

A clerk and a hattering man have been called into service by experts at work attempting to persuade the safe that it was time it was opened. But all efforts to yield the lock's machinery into action were fruitless.

Later today an acrobatic torch was brought into play and the locks yielded. It was found that a part of the mechanism which operated the lock had been broken.

WHAT THE PAPERS SAY
The Sensible Thing to Do.
Members of the senate committee on banks have taken the right course in regard to an effective "blue sky" law in spending all of the bills dealing with state control of sales and sellers of securities to a sub-committee with instructions to make a complete study of the means and report out a bill with ample provisions for safeguarding the interests of the public. It seems to be the general idea some sort of state supervision is necessary, but opinions differ as to the means and methods. (Harrisburg Telegraph.)
Strange But True.
In Russia millions are starving, and Russia sells 2,400,000 bushels of grain to Germany for immediate delivery. This does not mean that Russian starvation is pretense. India and Ireland both shipped food to England in the worst starvation times. (New York American.)

Fifty Years After "The Crime."
Fifty years ago today the senate passed a bill which at the time attracted but moderate notice, yet later set the nation by the ears and was denounced from many a political platform as the "Crime of 1872." The bill provided that the silver dollars of 1872 and 1873 should cease to have a place in our national coinage. It was claimed by the sponsors that the bill legalized an existing condition. Since the silver dollars had a higher bullion value just then than the gold dollars, it was found impossible to keep them in circulation. (New York Sun.)

A Record Price for Coal.
A man in Long Island had paid $50 for a ton of coal. It cost him only $10 at the mine, but he paid it forwarded by express, and the bill for this was $40. This is probably the highest price on record so far, but it does not greatly exceed what the poor people who buy their coal by the basket are often forced to pay. (Philadelphia Inquirer.)

Truth Means Fiction.
An Oklahoma man, part Cherokee Indian, having spent 22 years in jail for a murder he did not commit, has been released to find himself almost a millionaire. His release came when one of the chief witnesses against him admitted that her own husband had committed the crime.

There is plenty of material for the dramatist in this story. The woman aide of it alone would make a great play. The innocent victim's psychology would provide many interesting situations. Taken together, they would provide all the "meat" any writer needs. But they are not so far novel. There is, however, one element in this story which does not usually appear. It is the manner in which the community see justice done in the first instance. We do not refer to any spiritual growth the innocent man may have had in jail.

But all the time he was there, the community, without knowing it, was building up the value of his property. The demand for oil has made his land valuable without any help from him. Justice can not always retrieve her loss, but she sometimes makes a remarkably good attempt to do so, notwithstanding her blindness and the blindness of her devotees. (New York Evening Mail.)

POTATO CROP ABOVE NORMAL.
If Experience of Past Is Repeated, Some Farmers May Have No Market for Spuds Next Spring.
With the 1922 potato crop about 17 per cent above normal, if the experience of the past is repeated, some farmers may have potatoes next spring for which there is little sale, according to the workers in the field of rural economists at Cornell.

The government estimate of the 1922 potato crop they say is 451 million bushels. This is the largest potato crop ever grown in the United States. The normal production of potatoes is about 3.5 bushels per capita. The present population of the United States is approximately 110 millions. A normal crop would be about 385 million bushels.

This would leave a surplus of something over 66 million bushels of potatoes. When similar conditions have prevailed in the past, potatoes have usually sold for less in the spring than they did in the preceding fall. Since 1867 there have been seventeen years besides 1922 when the crop has been more than 10 per cent larger than a normal crop. In thirteen of these years the wholesale price of potatoes in New York city has been lower in April than in the preceding January. The decrease in price has ranged from 2 to 27 cents a bushel in the four years that the price has gone up, the increase has ranged from 5 to 25 cents a bushel.

The surplus production is largely in the middlewestern states. The middlewestern states are monopolizing the middlewestern markets. This makes it necessary for New York state potatoes to be sold in the east. Last year Maine had a surplus and the west was short. Considerable quantities of New York potatoes went west. Through these inter-sectional shipments, the effect of a large crop in any section affects the market in all sections.

"MARRY YOUNG," ADVICE OF 105 YEAR OLD WOMAN.
Atlantic City, N. J., Feb. 12.—A woman five years beyond the century mark, carrying the weight of age lightly on her shoulders, gave her granddaughter and the man whom she married here last night a parting injunction of happiness.

"Marry young so that husband and wife can go through life together, sharing the good and the bad, each helping the other," she said, "companionship and sympathy of a good wife is a big factor in the success of any man. She is rewarded by sharing in the things that come with his advancement, but neither should be too exacting."

The centenarian, Mrs. Henrietta Tait, of Philadelphia, made the trip to Atlantic City here in order to attend the wedding of her granddaughter, Miss Lucille Caplan, formerly of Philadelphia, to Morris Levy, an attorney of New York city. Although 105 years old, she takes half mile walks daily.

SITUATION MORE SERIOUS
Reports That Northern New York Is Suffering from Lack of Coal for Fuel.

General Goethals, as a result of a recent visit to Saratoga Springs and northern New York, has asked for an embargo on the shipment of coal to Canada by the D. & H.

General Goethals wrote that the up-staters had scrupulously followed suggestions for the use of substitutes, but that despite these measures conditions were going steadily from bad to worse.

"Coal is being delivered in most of the villages in from 100-pound to 300-pound lots," the letter said. "Many of the localities are dependent for their fuel upon the munificent supply of the industrial plants and these have responded to the call ungrudgingly and deserve commendation for their actions. Most of the churches through this section of the state have been closed for six weeks and some longer. The schools are closed intermittently, depending upon the fuel supply. Skidmore college is burning wood and, unless coal can be had, since the wood supply is nearing an end, the college must close."

Feeling of Injustice.
"A strong feeling of injustice exists with regard to the present allotment. In 1921, the winter was an open one and relatively mild. The current winter has been severe, both as to temperature and snow fall. During the winter of 1921, due to the strike of the employees of the International Paper company, a number of families left that portion of the state and therefore used no fuel. This condition does not exist at present. Inflation generally has expanded their plants and holdings, and what might have been fair in 1921 is totally inadequate for the conditions as they exist in 1922."

Explaining that most of the territory was served by the Delaware & Hudson railroad, General Goethals said he had been advised by the road that it was delivering the full present per cent allotment. But this is far from adequate, he reiterated, adding that conditions would become worse instead of better, as winter broke up and roads over which the fuel has to be hauled to villages, became impassable.

—Both the Normal and public schools of Oneonta, which had been closed over Monday, Lincoln's birthday, will reopen this morning and continue until the Easter vacation, now about seven weeks off. ## MEMBERSHIP DRIVE STARTS

One Day Canvass for Additional Members of Chamber of Commerce—Workers Bused Yesterday at Hotel Oneonta.

Starting with an enthusiastic luncheon meeting in the new dining room of the Hotel Oneonta yesterday noon, 20 members of Oneonta Chamber of Commerce began a one day canvass for memberships in the organization to make up for memberships cancelled the past year by deaths or removals from the city. A final report on the canvass will be made at 11 o'clock this morning at the Chamber offices.

An hour after the luncheon two workers on one team reported three new memberships and later in the afternoon another pair of workers turned in four new memberships, which were considered two indications that a large percentage of the prospect list of 75 will be enlisted in the Chamber membership before noon today.

Following an appetizing luncheon which spoke highly for the hotel's new dining room, Roscoe C. Briggs opened the meeting and introduced Paul L. Harvey, field director of the American City League. Mr. Harvey complimented the local Chamber on the record of achievement for the past year and for the spirit of co-operation and support which quite evidently the membership must have accorded the officers and directors the last two years. He pointed out the necessity of filling the membership ranks each year so that the Chamber's activities would not be impaired by diminished finances, but remarked that the Oneonta Chamber has done especially well during 1932 considering conditions.

The Third Alarm

The Third Alarm, a motion picture with sensation and excitement packed in every foot, together with a heart story of absorbing interest, pleased large audiences yesterday at the Oneonta theatre, where it is being presented as a benefit for the striking shop crafts. The picture, which is dedicated to fire ladders wherever they may be, is an excellent delineation of the difficulties and hazards of modern fire fighting and of the home life of the average fireman. Preceding the picture a short reel is shown depicting scenes connected with the Oneonta fire department.

LAD KILLED BY BUS

WALTER CARR, AGED SEVEN, SUSTAINS FATAL INJURIES

Boy Struck by Overhead Streetcar and Killed by Bus—Son of George A. Carr, 5 Park Avenue—No Blame Attached to Driver of Bus, Raymond Pride.

Walter Carr, the seven year old son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Carr of 5 Park Avenue, received fatal injuries at about 1:30 yesterday afternoon when he was run over at the corner of Gilbert and River streets by the River Street bus. He was taken to the nearby home of Henry Krichbaum, Jr., where he died at about 2 p. m., never having regained consciousness. Coroner Getman was called and decided that no inquest was necessary as the driver, Raymond Pride, seemed in no way responsible for the accident.

The lad was playing near the corner of River and Gilbert streets as the bus came down the first named street on its 1:30 trip, and Pride, the driver, noticed Walter, thinking that he waved. Pride proceeded to Gilbert street to turn around, as is his custom, and had backed into River street before the boy was struck. The bus to the business section could not attract his attention to the boy on his sled under the machine. Pride immediately got out of the bus and took the lad from under the motor of the truck to the home of Krichbaum. Dr. Hendrick was called but there was nothing he could do for the unfortunate boy, who died there about 3 o'clock.

After the bus went by it seems that the Carr boy ran after it and, lying on his sled, caught hold of the spare tires which are suspended under the rear of the body. Thus he rode to Gilbert street and made an effort to get away from the truck as it backed into River street. Spectators tried to attract the attention of Pride to the danger of the lad but Pride did not know that there was anyone behind him, nor could he see the lad from within the bus. The left rear wheel of the machine passed over the back of young Walter, crushing him above the sled to the ground. It seems that one of the broken ribs had punctured the boy's lungs and that he received a fracture to the base of the skull.

Pride, as well as Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Driggs, proprietor of the bus line, felt the accident very keenly but even the Carr family said last evening that the misfortune was entirely the fault of the lad, and that while they felt deepest sorrow upon the death of their only child there was no blame attached to Pride.

Such an accident as this should serve as a sad warning to the children of the city of the extreme danger attending the "hooking" of rides. A large number of similar accidents have been fortunately prevented the past few days, but certainly none of Walter's young playmates will soon forget the lesson which the sight of his smashed sled brings to mind.

Walter B. Carr was born in this city July 13, 1916, the only son of George A. Carr, 5 Park Avenue. In 1919 Mrs. Carr died following an attack of influenza. Walter was a bright and likable boy, being a popular student of the third grade of the River Street school. George A. Carr, the father, is a D. & H. fireman, and his second wife is a daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Norman S. Durd. The family will have the sympathy not only of a wide circle of friends, but also of all residents of the city.

Friends may visit the home Wednesday between 11 and 1 o'clock, and the funeral which will be private will be held from the home, 5 Park Avenue, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock with Rev. Dr. E. J. Farley of the First Baptist church officiating. The body will be placed in the vault of the Plains cemetery.

PHILHARMONICS PLEASE

Prof. Gardner's Orchestra Gives Two Excellent Concerts in Oneonta—Musicians at Many Theaters.

That the excellent reputation of Gardner's Philharmonic orchestra is well founded will be cheerfully conceded by the hundreds of Oneontans who packed the Muey theatre at both performances last evening to hear the first public concerts of the organization for 1933. For nearly an hour the 30 musicians, some of them hardly more than infants, entertained their auditors with a well-selected program rendered with excellent technique.

The first number was an overture, "Rhapsody," by Schubert, a selection which gave all the instruments, especially the brasses, a good opportunity to be heard to advantage. This was followed by a cornet solo, "Waiting," by Fred Spafford. Mr. Spafford always pleases and he was at his best last evening. The third selection, "Rubenstein's Melody in F," was played by the strings. The old familiar air was rendered in a manner that gave it a pleasing freshness. Mrs. W. I. Rowland next gave a soprano solo, "Angel's Serenade," by Braga, with a violin obbligato by John Canning. Mrs. Rowland was in fine voice and her solo won hearty applause. The obligato, without which the selection is rarely sung, was nicely done. The concert closed with a selection from "Lady, Lady," by Kern.

EAT MORE CORNMEAL DISHES

Kitchison Cereal Too Little Employed in American Diet, Nutrition Experts Say—Good Meat Recipe.

Except for Johnny cake and hasty pudding, cornmeal dishes are not used as widely as they might be, according to nutrition specialists at the school of home economics at Cornell. Cornmeal they say is a good food because it is a cheap source of energy. Supplemented with milk or cheese, its food value is greatly increased; but the nourishing parts are so closely bound up with the fiber, or roughage, that long cooking is required.

Corn is prepared by the new milling process, or by the old method of home grinding. More liquid should be used, and more fat may be used, with the fine cornmeal made by the new milling process, than with the coarser meal made by the old process. The home grinding of cornmeal leaves the germ and other nutrients that are lost by the new process, but the meal thus ground does not keep so well as the finer product.

Here is a good recipe for cornmeal mush: 1 cup cornmeal, 1 teaspoon salt, 3 1/2 to 5 cups boiling water, or scalded milk, or milk and water. Slowly sift the cornmeal into the hot liquid, or mix it with sufficient cold water to stir to the consistency of pour batter, and add it to the remaining hot liquid in the upper part of a double boiler. Cook the mixture over direct heat, stirring it constantly until it thickens; then cook it over hot water for about four hours. A fireless cooker container may be used instead of a double boiler, and as soon as the mush has thickened it may be placed in the fireless cooker for five to six hours, or overnight. One cup or less of raisins, chopped dates, or figs may be added just before the mush is served.

The bride, who was attired in grey Roman crepe with a grey lace hat and carried pink roses, was attended by Miss Dora Gilmarin of this city, who wore a gown of tan crepe and carried yellow roses. The best man was Edward M. Hughes of Syracuse, a cousin of the groom, Paul and Francis Riley, nephews of the bride, were ushers.

During the ceremony Miss Irene Hayes sang "O Promise Me" and "Ave Maria." Later a delicious wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Mary Riley, 66 Church street. The happy couple left on the 10:40 train for a honeymoon trip to Philadelphia and Atlantic City. Upon their return they will be at home at 66 Church street.

Dr. Truman F. Hall of Cooperstown, a former pastor, will be private. The body will be placed in the vault at the Plains cemetery for interment later in the family plot at Jefferson.

Born at Gilboa, June 15, 1858, the daughter of the late George W. and Mary Ann (Heslin) Ellerson, most of her life was passed in the Cooperstown area.

Funeral of Dr. Ezra Melbongal.

The funeral of the late Dr. Ezra Melbongal was held at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the family home on Grand street. Though the services were private, there was a goodly attendance, embracing besides relatives, a considerable number of neighbors and intimate personal friends of the deceased, and there were many floral tributes, among them remembrances from the Oneonta W. C. T. U. and the Plains Methodist Episcopal church. His pastor, Rev. Dr. J. W. Flynn of the First Methodist Episcopal church, officiated, reading suitable selections, followed with a brief address which referred in large measure to the value to the community of one who so long had carried on the work of a physician, and closing with prayer.

The body was placed in the Riverside vault and interment next spring will be beside his wife in the Camp plot in that cemetery. The bearers were, Drs. W. S. Dart, A. H. Brownell, G. H. Brinkman and J. M. McClellan. BOVINA RESIDENT SUICIDES.

Mrs. Fred Johnson kills self at home in Bovina Center.

Delhi, Feb. 12. — Mrs. Fred Johnson of Bovina Center committed suicide Friday night at her home. Her husband is ill, having recently suffered two strokes. She was rooming on the second floor with her sister, Mrs. Thomas Russell. About 2 o'clock Saturday morning Mrs. Johnson arose and went down stairs, her sister supposing that she had gone to look after her husband. In the morning, however, there was nothing to be seen of Mrs. Johnson. A search was made and she was found in a garret, where she probably had gone when she arose, with her throat cut.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson were for many years farmers in the upper end of the town of Bovina. They recently sold their farm and moved to Bovina village. They are well known and well to do people. She leaves no children. The funeral was held at the Covenant church in the village of Bovina today.

THE HUNTINGTON FOUNDATION

Los Angeles Times Describes Great Gift of Generous Native of Ontario—Hundred Million Dollars Estimated Value of California Library and Endowment

The following from a recent issue of the Los Angeles Times, describing the gift of the library and park which under the name of the Huntington Foundation, will be the gift of Henry H. Huntington to the people of California and to a scarcely less extent to the world will interest Star readers, many of whom know the benefactor personally, and all of whom have opportunity to use the fine Huntington Memorial park and library of this city.

The Huntington Foundation, Henry H. Huntington's gift to the people of Southern California and the nation, says the Times, is nearly $100,000,000. It was learned recently that the organization and purposes of the foundation were explained more fully than at any previous time, in an address by Henry H. Huntington, president of the First National bank and one of the foundation trustees.

Mr. Huntington spoke to the students of the University of California, Southern Branch. Mr. Huntington himself was scheduled to be present and speak, but telephoned shortly before the assembly that he had a cold and did not think it best to go out in rainy weather.

Library Worth $100,000,000

The Huntington library alone is worth $50,000,000, and to this must be added the value of the paintings, of the library building and residence, of the 500-acre Huntington estate, and of the endowment which will maintain the foundation in perpetuity, said Mr. Huntington. Mr. Huntington's Southern Branch, supplementing Mr. Huntington's address, so that the estimate of $100,000,000 is probably conservative.

Mr. Huntington said the Foundation was incorporated under the same act of legislation as Stanford University. In its terms the entire Huntington estate, with all books and paintings owned by Mr. Huntington either at San Marino or elsewhere, will be thrown open to the public as the Henry H. Huntington Library and Art Gallery.

Trustees in Control

The foundation is under control of five trustees nominated by Mr. and Mrs. Huntington during their lifetimes and self-perpetuating after their deaths. The deeds of conveyance were signed in 1919 and 1920, and the library building is now nearly completed.

This library, Mr. Huntington explained, consists of between 250,000 and 300,000 volumes, nearly all rare books, and represents not only the work of Mr. Huntington's lifetime but of the lifetimes of hundreds of collectors of taste and discrimination, which the super-collector has merged together.

"Mr. Huntington is indefatigable," said Mr. Robinson. "He once told me he had made up his mind to buy no more books for at least sixty days, and within thirty days he had purchased four libraries. The books are principally of American and English origin and subject, and there is no doubt the Huntington Foundation constitutes a cultured gift without a parallel in this continent, and, I believe, in the whole world.

Not on Record

"The equal in quality and quantity to any on record, anywhere. Within the month I have been told by two Englishmen of discrimination that there is nothing in England to compare with the Huntington collection of British paintings. It includes the 'Blue Boy,' the 'Tragic Muse,' the portrait of Mrs. Siddons, the Romney portraits and many others. In the library there are more examples of the best and early editions of Shakespeare than in the British Museum."

The paintings, bronzes and tapestries of the Huntington collection are housed in the Huntington mansion, Mr. Robinson said. He declared the view from the Huntington estate, situated on the western bend of the San Gabriel Valley, was not surpassed anywhere in the world.

Planted Orange Groves

In his treatment of the grounds Mr. Huntington has interested with native very little, except in the planting of orange groves, which do not add to the beauty of the estate.

Mr. Robinson called attention to the fact that Mr. Huntington was born in the same year that California came into the Union and that Reynolds and Gainsborough, painters of the most famous paintings now in the Huntington collection, were contemporaries with the first settled California.

He went into no details of the endowment fund of the foundation, but declared it was sufficient to maintain and enlarge the collection, both of books and of pictures, for all time.

Dr. Moore, who followed the bank, declared the Foundation was as important to the world as the founding of the Alexandrian library and the Medici collection at Florence, and said if the climate of Southern California should ever fall, the Huntington collection would still continue to draw the world to this section.

Hart and Orr Trials Soon

New York, Feb. 12. — The trial of former Prohibition Director Harold L. Hart, formerly of Binghamton, William A. Orr, secretary to Charles S. Whitman during the latter's term as governor, and 19 others, charged with defrauding the government by illegal withdrawals of whiskey, will start some day next week, according to U. S. Attorney William Hayward.

A recent survey shows that there are more than 12,000,000 motor cars in the United States. Even if an average of five people can ride in a car, that leaves about 60,000,000 who have to walk. The situation should be remedied.—(Cleveland Plain Dealer.)

THE HUNTINGTON FOUNDATION

Los Angeles Times Describes Great Gift of Generous Native of Oneonta—Hundred Million Dollars Estimated Value of California Library and Endowment.

The following from a recent issue of the Los Angeles Times, describing the gift of the library and park which under the name of the Huntington Foundation, will be the gift of Henry E. Huntington to the people of California and to a scarcely less extent to the world will interest Star readers, many of whom know the benefactor personally, and all of whom have opportunities for using the fine Huntington Memorial park and library of this city.

That the value of the Huntington Foundation, Henry E. Huntington's gift to the people of Southern California and the nation, says the Times, is nearly $100,000,000 was learned recently when the organization and purpose of the foundation were explained at a more fully than at any previous time, in an address by Henry M. Robinson, president of the First National bank and one of the Foundation trustees.

Mr. Robinson spoke to the students of the University of California, Southern Branch. Mr. Huntington himself was scheduled to be present and speak, but telephoned shortly before the assembly that he had a cold and did not think it best to go out in rainy weather.

Library Worth $100,000,000

The Huntington Library alone is worth $10,000,000, and to this must be added the value of the paintings, the library building and residence, of the 56-acre Huntington estate, and of the endowment which will maintain the Foundation in perpetuity, said Mr. Robinson.

Mr. Robinson said the Foundation was incorporated under the same act of legislature as Stanford University. In its terms the entire Huntington estate, with all books and paintings owned by Mr. Huntington either at San Marino or elsewhere, will be thrown open to the public as the Henry E. Huntington Library and Art Gallery.

Trustees in Control. The foundation is under control of five trustees nominated by Mr. and Mrs. Huntington during their lifetimes and self-perpetuating after their deaths. The deeds of conveyance were signed in 1919 and 1920, and the library building is now nearly completed.

This library, Mr. Robinson explained, consists of between 250,000 and 300,000 volumes, nearly all rare books, and represents not only the work of Mr. Huntington's lifetime but of the lifetimes of hundreds of collectors of taste and discrimination, which the super-collector has merged together.

"Mr. Huntington is indefatigable," said Mr. Robinson. "He once told me he had made up his mind to buy no more books for at least sixty days, and within thirty days he had purchased four libraries. The books are principally of American and English origin and subject, and there is no doubt the Huntington Foundation constitutes a cultured gift without a parallel on this continent, and I believe in the whole world.

Not on Record. "The equal in quality and quantity is not on record anywhere. Within the month I have been told by two Englishmen of discrimination that there is nothing in England to compare with the Huntington collection of English paintings. It includes the 'Blue Boy,' the 'Tragic Muse,' the portrait of Mrs. Siddons, the Romney portraits and many others. In the library there are more examples of the first and early editions of Shakespeare than in the British Museum."

The paintings, bronzes and tapestries of the Huntington collection are housed in the Huntington mansion, Mr. Robinson said. He declared the view from the Huntington estate, situated on the western bend of the San Gabriel Valley, was not surpassed anywhere in the world.

"The views at Athens and at St. Petersburg are not dissimilar, but at San Marino the scale is grander than the surroundings of the Acropolis," he said.

Planted Orange Groves.

"In his treatment of the grounds Mr. Huntington has interfered with nature very little, except in the planting of orange groves, which, to my mind add to the beauty of the scene."

Mr. Robinson called attention to the coincidences that Mr. Huntington was born in the same year that California became a state, and that the most famous paintings now in the Huntington collection were completed by the first settled California.

He went into no details of the endowment fund of the foundation, but declared it was sufficient to maintain and enlarge the collection, both of books and of pictures, for all time.

Mr. Robinson followed the bank-er, declared the Foundation was as important to the world as the founding of the Alexandrian library and the Medici collections at Florence, and said if the climate of Southern California should ever fall, the Huntington collection would still continue to draw the world to this section.
